CURRENT AND RECENT RESEARCH PROJECTS

Current

Impacts of Covid-19: to analyze how the pandemic has transformed the way we live, work, learn, shop, and socialize, and how it has reproduced and exacerbated systemic inequalities for people of color and the poor; multiple sources of funding.

Transportation and Spatial Barriers to Early Childhood Education, funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. A project to document the challenging and barriers facing low-income and minority children.

Transportation Inequality, funded by California Air Resources Board. To develop and analyze indicators on disparities in access to transportation resources across neighborhoods.

Recent

South Florida Janitors Unite for Responsibility in the Commercial Real Estate Industry, a project with SEIU Local 32BJ to support South Florida's Justice for Janitors Campaign. Project situates the experiences of office janitors within South Florida's real estate market, primarily Miami.

Home-Health Care Workers, a project with L.A. County and California SEIU-United Long-Term Care Workers (ULTCW) to document working conditions and wage issues to support a policy to increase reimbursement for care.

Asset Building among Asian Americans and People of Color, funded by Ford Foundation: to conduct applied research in support of the foundation's program on Building Economic Security Over Lifetime, a collaborative effort by a network of university and community organizations to close the wealth gap.

Assessing Sustainable Community Strategies, funded by California's Air Resource Board and Caltrans (Department of Transportation): to develop a data system to monitor land-use activities and consistency with California's environmental sustainability goals as articulated in SB 375.

Collaborative Project on Gentrification and Displacement, funded by The California Endowment: to conduct research to measure recent housing and socioeconomic changes in Building Healthy Communities in Southern California, identify challenges and opportunities to improve conditions, and support efforts by community groups to ensure equitable development.

Half Century of Progress? Socioeconomic Trajectories in Los Angeles' Marginalized Neighborhoods, funded by numerous sources, including Haynes Foundation: to evaluate changes in disadvantaged communities relative to policy recommendations proposed after the 1965 Watts Riots and 1992 L.A. Unrest/Uprising.

Renter Protection Policies in Los Angeles, funded by California Community Foundation: to inventory and evaluate rent stabilization and anti-displacement policies, in collaboration with SPARCC (Strong, Prosperous, And Resilient Communities Challenge) and the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.
